where it is held by centrifucal pressure, whilst the crushed quartz being of low specific gravity, rehounds and is carried away. In the oneration no mercury is lost, nor does it flour, it simply acts as a condensed liquid target against which the material is projected. The fact of its being under centrifugal pressure, which is several hundred pounds per square inch prevents it being floured. In an air same hlast, every individual particle of sand strikes the object against which it is projected, so in this "water sand blast" every grain of sand and gold strikes the mercurial target, the gold, as said before penetrating, but the sand rebounding, in which point lies the perfect success of the machine—in saving every vestige, of gold. A great advantage of this machine is its capacity for handling a large quantity of miterial per day, for, on coming under the centrifucal action, the sand enters and passes through like a flash. The principle of projecting gold bearing mediums against mercury, whish leld in a condensed condition by centrifugal power is something entirely new in mining.

Bingham Bulletin Notes. Ed Coyle has leased and honded the Tiger mine in Cottonwood gulch to J. Tiger mine in Cottonwood gulch to J. Sawyer, son of Judge Sawyer, of Salt Lake city. Work will begin immediately on the property and will be superintended by Mr. Sawyer in person, who is now building a residence in Carr Fork and evidently ligends to remain among us. The property is located in a very rich part of the mineral belt and we predict will soon be one of the regular ore shippers of the camp.

PROSPEROUS IS MEXICO. age this country cannot stand on its own bottom, for fear that the single standard of silver would predominate at once. These same gold standard advocates should take into consideration the fact that Mexico is on a silver basis and is today one of the most prosperous, if not the most prosperous, agrion in the whole world as con-to what the great world outside is do-ing. It is a country of energy and effort, allve with hope and great in its effort, alive with hope and great in its opportunity. A man may sit at home in the interior of the United States and conclude that he can form a correct idea of what the conditions of business and the state of public sentiment in Mexico are. So one in the frigid zone may say while he shivers by his fireside that he knows there is supported in the tropical but it is not

A high rate of exchange combined with a low rate of wages makes it practicable and profitable to engage in industries that once were foreign to our southern neighbor.

This high rate of exchange grows out of the difference between the price of silver and gold. Foreign exchange is counted at 100 per cent. It is because silver is worth only about half as much as gold, and Mexico is on a silver basis, whereas in Europe and the United States values are measured by gold. sis, whereas in Europe and the United States values are measured by gold. When a man in Mexico wishes to send money to Europe or the United States in payment for goods purchased he must give up two Mexican dollars for every dollar which has to be paid on a gold basis in the foreign country. In other words, his bill of exchange drawn on a New York bank is paid when presented at that bank in gold or its equivalent. This bill of exchange if drawn for $100 represents that much the aggregate sum exported for Septem-sented at that bank in gold or its equivalent. This bill of exchange if drawn for $100 represents that much gold money or silver dollars of American coinage. Consequently the purchaser of the bill in Mexico must pay the bank which issues it to him $200 in Mexican silver, for as I have said silver is worth only half as much as gold. But Mexican silver dollars buy in Mexico practically as much of any, it hing as they ever did.

Worth Its Face in Mexico.

Whatever disputants may conclude respecting the United States and Europe it is evident that in Mexico silver has not fallen, but that it is gold that has risen. In Mexico silver will buy more, for the purchasing power of the latter has increased. Mexico stands aloof from the great finacial storm which is raging in the gold using world. Its money its entire risen nor fallen in value. It is only when a Mexican purchaser crosses the national boundary that he finds his silver dollars are not received at their face value. Knowing that at home his dollar is as good as of old, it is but natural that he confines his nuivelesses as much in the confines his nuivelesses as much as great at the demand of the manufacture of substitutes of the purchasing power of the latter has increased, Mexico stands aloof from the great finacial storm which is raging in the gold using world. Its money it is only when a more fallen in value. It is only when a more fallen in value. It is only when a fallen he had the finds his silver dollars are not received at their face value. The conditions which exist in the republic of Mexico should prove an object lesson to the people of the United | that he confines his purchases as much States and especially to those who con-tend that in the matter of free coin-age this country cannot stand on its the importer has had to purchase who been company to who knows to the recent surface and the standard with the most prosperous, if not the most prosperous and it is better to manufacture in Mexico on the inside of this exchange wall it is better to manufacture in Mexico on the inside of this wall and pay for labor at life of this wall and pay for labor at life of this wall and pay for labor at life of this wall and pay for labor at life of this wall and pay for labor at life of

United States to all Americans who do not know what the country beyond the Rio Grande is doing.

Is Mexico the land of "poco tiempo" — the land where nobedy does anything today and everybody promises to do something tomorrow? If it ever was it is so no longer. It is not a land of dreams, of idleness and of indifference to what the great world outside is do-time. It is a southful of opening and it is a southful opening and it is tion of returning when they have looted it of all they can carry away. Its development is lasting. Its growth is enduring and permanent. It is becoming industrially independent through the efforts mainly of its own frigid zone may say while he shivers by his fireside that he knows there is summer in the tropics, but it is not until he goes to the far south that he really comes in touch with the summer, hears the song of birds and feels the soft warm wind as it kisses his cheek. So one cannot appreciate in its full measure the prosperity of Mexico unless he breathes the atmosphere of prosperity which prevails across the Rio Grande and sees the light of hope shining in the eyes of all with whom he comes in contact. Mexico is riding upon the crest of the wave. With it the tide is at its flood. There is no sound of discord, no murmur of complaint. The people are in love with their ruler, loyal to their government and proud of their country. Factional opposition has ceased, and both Conservatives and Liberals favor the introduction of modern improvements and welcome the coming of foreign capital.

Prosperity Everywhere.

There is not a remote corner of the republic where there is staggation. The impulse which is driving Mexico forward with railway speed leaves no place for eddies, no opportunity for condition of affairs is seen, the same for industries and provide employment for labor. In every direction the same place for eddies, no opportunity for The impulse which is driving Mexico forward with railway speed leaves no place for eddies, no opportunity for retrogression. From every walk of life, from every avenue of trade, comes the same story—the story of labor rewarded, of industries established, of enterprises projected. Instead of exporting its silver as formerly Mexico is keeping it at home, and it is fluding employment on every hand. Though the volume of the circulating medium has increased enormously there is no idle capital. No bank is congested with money that cannot be loaned at a low rate of interest. Money commands 10 and 12 per cent, and there are hundreds of ways in which it may be invested, it is no wonder the neonle are hanny. and 12 per cent, and there are hundreds of ways in which it may be invested. It is no wonder the people are happy and contented. It is no wonder that President Diaz rules with ease, and that all thought of revolution has been banished from Mexican minds.
